Curtin University's Physical Activity and Well-Being laboratory is seeking participants to complete 1 or 2 short online assessments to aid research into athlete motivation and the role a coach plays to influence motivation and other experiences within their sport of choice.

This study is part of international research and the results will provide valuable insights into improving participation in sport.

For those that complete the surveys, there is an opportunity to win a $50 Coles Myer gift card.

Questionnaires can be found at the following links:

The WAFC would encourage as many people as possible to complete the questionnaires to assist the researchers. Ultimately, this research will help the development of coaches and those involved in improving a sporting experience.
